The Metopola, commenting on the meeting of the Emperors of Russia and Germany at Berlin, considers the fraught with grave consequences to the welfare of Europe. All Europe is ailing. France has obtained new life and if the German Emperor can find any method, no matter how severe and drastic, for limiting the power of the Kaiser, he will welcome it, even should it be war.

What a Survivor of the Schiller has to Say.

LONDON, May 11.—Henry Stein, a produce merchant of New York, is the only surviving passenger of the first cable to the ship, Schiller. He says after the Schiller struck, he, with several others, went into the saloon and desired to arouse the women and children, who had all retired to rest. He found them all sleeping and distributed them to the passengers. The last one was given to Mrs. Becker, of Philadelphia. When the waves began to break over the vessel, it was his duty to remain on deck. All discipline among the crew was at an end. The waves were then rolling over the whole ship, sweeping many overboard. Mr. Stein situated on the foremast, and was the only one who survived. At 1 o'clock a tremendous sea came, carrying every man before it, and when the ship was broken, the women and children, clear of the deck. Those persons on the bridge were also carried off. The sailors rode off in a life-boat. Another life-boat, with Mr. Stein, in command, was launched, and he, soon after, found many men. It afterwards reached shore with ten persons, including Mr. Jones, the only woman save I.

There was a great excitement on the steamer when the survivors were rescued. The men were hanging in the rigging, and the mast soon fell, killing and drowning nearly all except Stein, who succeeded in catching hold of two floating beams and was saved. Stein, who was the only survivor, was rescued by the St. Agnes life-boat. Christina Jones says she and her husband jumped into the boat as it was being lowered. It was full of men and women. After drifting two hours they were picked up.

Chicago News.

CHICAGO, May 11.—The great raid on whisky distilleries is the chief topic of conversation, though there seems to be less excitement here than in St. Louis and Milwaukee. The dealers express no feeling of concern, and the books will result disastrously to them, and the Government officials seem to think that the alleged frauds are confined more particularly to St. Louis and Milwaukee.

In the latter place the feeling is very bitter and there is a prospect of violence to-day if the Government Detectives do not conduct themselves with the utmost discretion. Witnesses in the trial of the Schiller yesterday, and was arrested for carrying weapons. A number of other seizures have been made, and the Government is awaiting with much interest.

The army regiment which takes place this week in showing much of the attention of the public just now. Preparations for the event are in a gratifying state of forwardness, and by Wednesday nothing will be left undone that will contribute to the comfort of the city's guests or to the excitement of the occasion. The Chicago ex-soldiers will be found to have been well directed, and visitors can not fail to find an enjoyable time during the progress of the review.

The Citizens' Association, in order to block all action of the City Council under the new information, will to-day file a quo warranto in the original Court, and a bill of information in the Circuit Court, setting forth the alleged frauds in the election.

Mr. John A. Rice, one of the late proprietors of the Grand Pacific Hotel, becomes manager of the Tremont House to-day, Mr. Couch retaining the proprietorship.

Hurlbert & Co. have leased the Sherman House for $30,000 per annum of the United States Mortgage Company. The Sherman estate is considerably behind, and the change is made against the wishes of the representatives.

The Becker-Tilton Trial.

BROOKLYN, May 11.—This evening or tomorrow will witness the last of the rebuttal testimony for the plaintiff, and then the actual trial will close. The general opinion is that the jury will acquit.

The examination of Mrs. McDonald was continued to-day by Morris testified of Fullerton, who was absent. The witness testified of Fullerton in a contradictory manner to the testimony of the other witnesses. The witness testified that she had lived with Tilton for 25 years. Had lived with his parents at Keyport, and came to Brooklyn about 18 years ago. Was at Tilton's house when he was born.

Theodore Tilton was then recalled, and testified: I never visited Mr. Woodhull's house when he lived at Irving Place. I never saw Mrs. Woodhull at any time. I never saw her presence. "Vivian," you publish this, and you are a made woman," referring to the scandal. I never called Woodhull aside at the Grand street office and talked to him about the scandal.

He never said to me that he would not have anything to do with the publication. I had spoken to him about it at the office in April, 1872. I was at the office in April, 1872. I was never present when any proof slips of that article were shown, and I never saw any of the correspondence with Mr. Woodhull terminated April 18, 1872. Never heard it said that Becker & Co. had offered to pay $100,000 to suppress the scandal. I never saw any of the political campaign here in Baltimore.

July 22, 1872, at the time Woodley testified I was at the Woodhull office. I did not stay at Mr. Woodhull's house July 4, 1872. I never slept on a sofa at her house. I never partook of refreshments with Mrs. Woodhull in her house. I never had any champagne or champagne supper there. I never went out riding with Mrs. Woodhull in a phaeton. Mrs. Woodhull never said to me that she would "make it hot" for me, or that she would "make it hot" for her sister-in-law, Mr. Beecher. I did not reside at her sister-in-law Hall street.

I was never in the Woodhull office by gas-light. I never asked Mr. Cooke to write with me in the publication of the Golden Age. Cooke wished to join me on the paper and I refused. Mrs. Palmer could never have heard any conversation in reference to starting the Golden Age, as I did not know her until long after the paper had been started. At the time she was shown me in Mrs. Woodhull's office, in her presence, I was absent in the West.

I walked arm in arm with Mr. John Swinton in the Rosebud procession, and did not ride in a carriage with Mrs. Woodhull, and did not see her during the day. The "True Story" had not been written at the time of the interview in Moulton's study, November, 1872, between Woodhull and myself. The "True Story" was not written before the following December. I never heard Moulton mention Beecher or of conversation as more memoranda, or note of conversation, or anything of that kind, with Beecher or anything of that kind. Beecher.
